

Liturgical Interior Design

OVERVIEW

An often-overlooked yet mission-critical person in church design and renewal is the Liturgical Interior Designer. They are the subject matter experts when it comes to delivering a holistic and visually pleasing worship environment that will inspire the masses. These professionals provide invaluable support services to our Liturgical Consultants in the key areas of colors, finishes, liturgical furnishings and sacred art. Kathleen L. Maglicco is the head of Rohn & Associates Custom Studio's design team, and with thirty years of hands-on experience in the field of Liturgical Interior Design and Parish Education, she is a key component in creating a holistic worship environment. Kathy majored in Interior Design at the Art Institute of Pittsburgh, graduating with honors, and honed her expertise at the Catholic Theological Union, Institute for Liturgical Consultants, in Chicago, IL. She is well versed not only in the principles of interior design but also the requirements that the sacraments dictate and proper church guidelines outlined in the USCCB document "Built of Living Stones". She has decades of experience expediting working with finishes and sacred art at major cathedrals and basilicas around the world, providing an enriched perspective to both large and small projects.

CREATING A HARMONIOUS AND HOLISTIC VISION

A Liturgical Interior Designer's scope of work includes but is not limited to paint and finishes for church interiors, architectural details, furniture, flooring, sacred art refurbishment and design, functional aesthetic resources such as lighting and acoustical fixtures, and so much more. Kathy leads teams of handpicked artists, artisans and painters, along with parish leaders and committees, to deliver the full gamut of sample work specific to each project, highlighting color schemes and decoration through architectural details, flooring, furniture, murals, faux finishes, gold leaf and more. Her work ensures that liturgical artwork and appointments, furnishings, and environments are correct and in harmony to fulfill each parish's unique traditions and in alignment with leadership's vision. She is a master at finishing new interiors and awakening the beauty of older environments hidden under years of dirt and dust to create awe-inspiring sacred spaces that rightfully place the liturgy and sacred art as the central focus. Kathy also has graphic design support to help you and your parishioners envision the finished project through beautifully rendered artistic visions. When possible, we also try to incorporate local talent, which makes a project even more unique and meaningful.

PROCESS AND FEE SCHEDULE

We provide one initial no obligation free consultation and a summary of our suggestions with a general fee structure. Once a client decides to move forward with our services, Kathy schedules a series of carefully timed, collaborative meetings on-site with everyone involved in the project to delve deeper into the liturgical design needs of the environment. Based on the detailed feedback from these conversations, our designers develop specific plans and prices for liturgical art, furnishings, flooring and more under the approved scope of work. They then submit color schemes and finish samples for the liturgical space and furnishings for review, as well as graphically rendered visions of the completed project. Once a client approves these items, we prepare and present a schedule to oversee their fabrication, delivery and installation, managing and coordinating all of the team players and on-site contractors. We handle everything, from bids to change orders to project closeout. Fees and schedules are updated throughout the process as needed, and the client always has final approval.

LONG-DISTANCE PROJECT MANAGEMENT

Rohn & Associates Custom Studio, Inc. has successfully completed thousands of projects spanning the United States and internationally for well over half a century, so we've finessed all the kinks that come with this challenge into an incredibly smooth process. The Design Team remains in constant contact via email, phone, Face Time and Skype, and regularly schedules trips to oversee the project, ensuring every step is proceeding seamlessly until we have provided you with a flawless, awe-inspiring and spiritually uplifting liturgical environment. Our artists and graphic designers also provide continuous visual updates of the project to ensure everyone is on the same page, and we adjust whatever necessary along the way to fulfill your exact vision. We also schedule frequent visits to our suppliers to source and manage the highest quality of product from places as far as Italy and the Philippines.
